FAILURE IS A STEPPING STONE

Failure is not a step backward. It is an excellent stepping stone to success. We never learn to move out of our comfort zone if we do not overcome our fear of failure.

Such is the case with Thomas Edison, whose most memorable invention was the electric bulb, which purportedly took him 1,000 attempts before he developed a successful prototype. “How did it feel to fail 1,000 times?” a reporter asked. “I didn’t fail 1,000 times”, Edison responded. “The light bulb was an invention with 1,000 steps” .

When we take a closer look at the great thinkers throughout history, a willingness to take on failure is not a new or extraordinary thought at all from the likes of Augustine, Darwin and Freud to the business mavericks and sports legends of today, failure is a powerful tool in attainment of great success.

1. Failure is a redirection. It shows you where you should not be.
2. Failure is an opportunity. It is a chance to reevaluate and come back stronger with better reasoning.
3. Failure is not fatal. No matter how hard it may be. One should know that failure simply means you get another shot to try it all again.

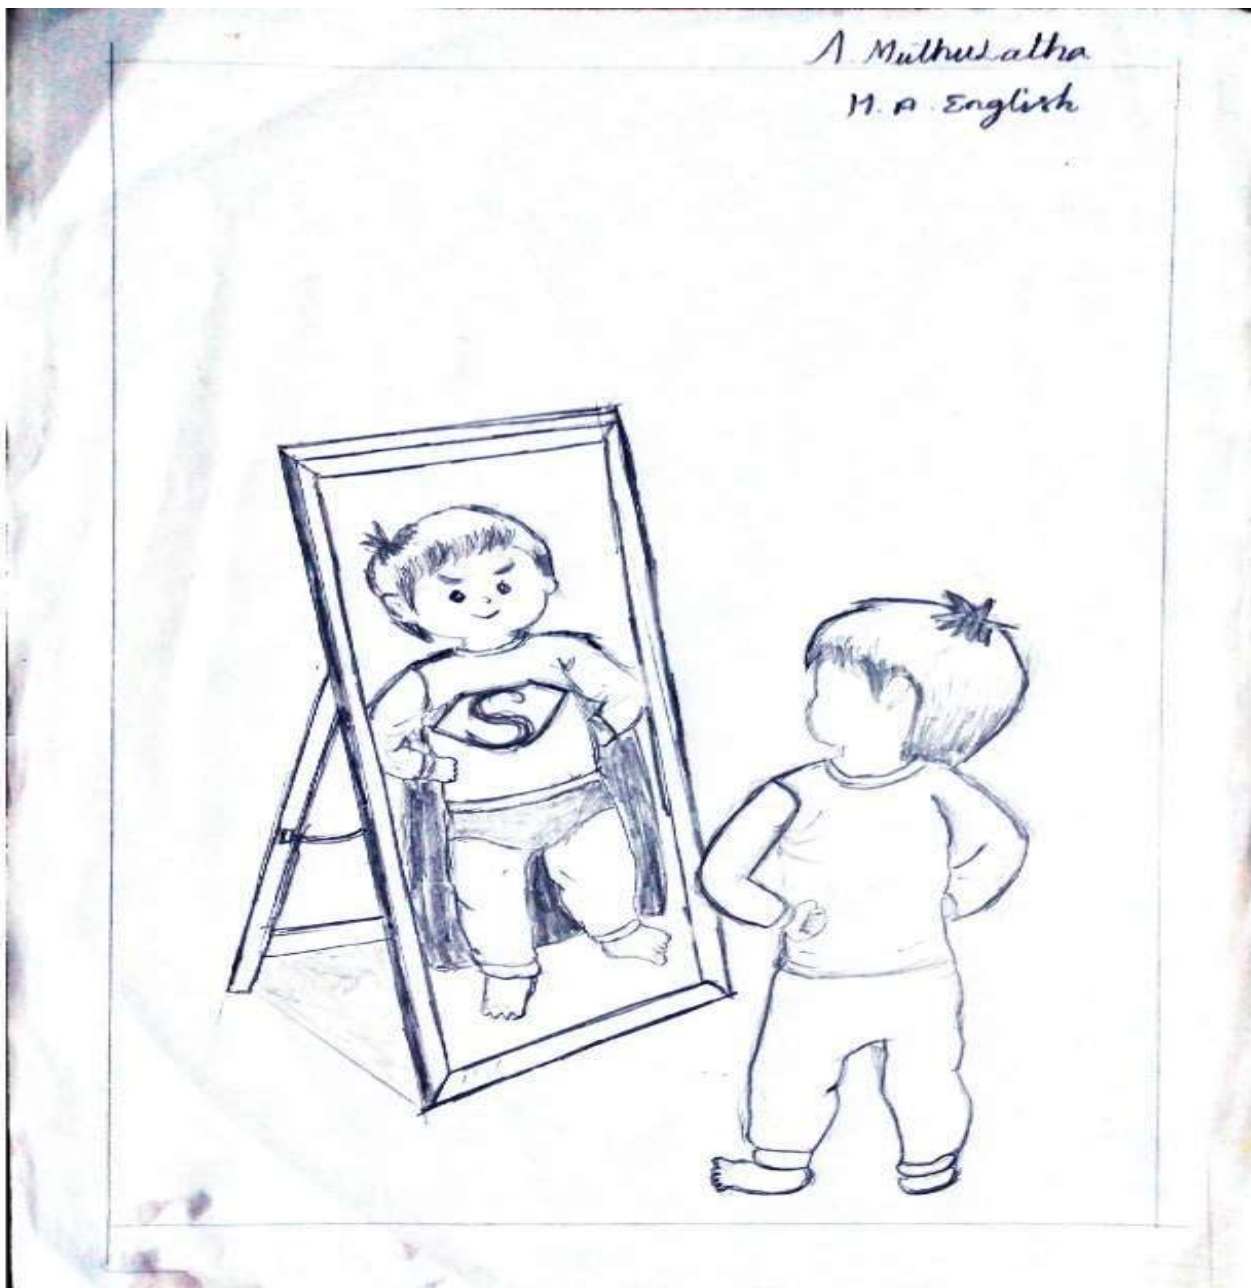

To achieve your personal best, to reach unparalleled heights, to make the impossible possible, you should not fear failure, you must think big, and you have to push yourself.

So do not let fear of failure hold you back from reaching out for your goals. The key to success is not avoiding failure but to overcome the fear of failure, learn from your failures and use them to build yourself up.
